TYPICAL CUSTOMER

Helen, 46
Office manager

Typical customer

Built from the largest cohort on Debenhams

- Size UK 14
- Laptop in the evening, phone at lunch; doesn't use the app
- Debit card, Apple Pay
- £50–£60 per order, one or two orders a season

Shops Debenhams once or twice a season, usually in the evening on her laptop or phone, for something for herself and something for the house. Pays by card or Apple Pay, rarely uses a code, and most of what she buys turns out to be marketplace stock.

● A dress for herself and a lamp for the hall	£55
● Marketplace trust check	£60
● Checking out as a returning guest	£52
● Evening browsing on her phone	£50
● Returning a dress that didn't suit	Refund
● Christmas for the household and her mum	£300
● Post-Christmas home refresh	£100
● Black Friday without the rush	£120

Portraits are original illustrations, not photographs of real people. Catch-all personas rotate their details on each run, so their portraits are placeholders. Cohort shares are behavioural: the typical customer from the last three months of orders, the other four from 12 months (10 Oct 2025 to 8 Oct 2026). They overlap and don't sum to 100%. Cards link to live results where a persona has been run.
